

Author Biographical Information

Mr. Bogue has worked at the NASA-Dryden Flight Research Center for over 38 years in various capacities associated with flight instrumentation and aircraft safety. He has been involved with inter-agency safety teams as well as with development and testing of airborne turbulence warning technology to improve airline safety. At Dryden, he currently serves as Staff Scientist and in addition, he is the Manager of the Turbulence Prediction and Warning Element of the NASA Aviation Safety Program.