

“Neal S. Latman, PhD, is currently a faculty member at West Texas A&M University. He earned his doctorate in Physiological Sciences (anatomy, physiology, pharmacology, and toxicology) from Oklahoma State University. His undergraduate education included an emphasis on biology, psychology, and chemistry. He is a member of the American Physiological Society. He owns and operates NSL Associates, a research and development consulting company. Among his areas of interest and expertise are the evaluation of biomedical instrumentation, behavior predictions, aircraft safety, and survival.”