

Dr. Albert Moussa: Technical Director
BlazeTech Corporation

Summary:

He is the Founder and Technical Director of BlazeTech Corporation in Cambridge, MA, a company that specializes in safety, environment, and energy. He specializes in fire and explosion working particularly for the aircraft and chemical industries. He got his B.S. from Stanford University and his MS and PhD from MIT. He has published widely including one book. His forewarning about fuel tank vulnerabilities prior to the TWA 800 and Concorde disasters has gained him notoriety in the US and international media. He has received many awards, most recently the Engineer of the Year Award from the New England Section of the AIAA in 2000, the Distinguished Lecturer award by the AIAA in 2004, and best paper awards by SAE in 2005 and ASEI in 2006.