

David Leach is Product Manager at Henkel Aerospace. He has over 25-years experience in composites and adhesives research and development, technical support and marketing. He is author of over 30 technical papers and book chapters on composites, and has been an invited lecturer at seminars and training courses on composites. He received BSc in physics from Imperial College London and is a Chartered Scientist (UK).