

Adam Shrimpton is a Ph.D. candidate at RMIT University in Melbourne, Australia. His research focuses on the crashworthiness of automotive child restraints in transport category aircraft and is sponsored by Australia's Civil Aviation Safety Authority (CASA). Adam graduated from RMIT University in 2008 with a bachelor degree in aerospace engineering.