

Thomas Barth Ph.D. (Tom)

Survival Factors Investigator,
National Transportation Safety Board

Dr. Barth is an Accident Investigator and Biomechanical Engineer at the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB). He received his B.S. in Mechanical Engineering from Colorado State University and his Ph.D. in Applied Science from Cranfield University. Dr. Barth is in his third year at the NTSB and has 20 years industry experience in occupant safety and crash dynamics. His industry experience includes automotive, military, and aviation safety work in the US, Germany, and France.