NFPA'S
AIRCRAFT FIRE INVESTIGATORS MANUAL

COMPLIMENTS OF NAFEC (ANA-420)
The edition of the manual

NFPA No. 422M – 1972

Aircraft Fire Fighting Equipment Manual

422M-1
I. Purpose: The purpose of the recommendations in this Manual

2. General:

(4) Division of Accident Investigation and Airworthiness:

(5) Revealing and investigating the investigation's role and effect on the

3. Aircraft materials.

With knowledge of the characteristics of the and its effect on the

4. Aircraft materials.

5. Aircraft materials.

6. Aircraft materials.

4. Aircraft materials.

2. General:

and not confining himself to filling out the blanks.

When using this Manual, and especially when utilizing the
The right to access and obtain other records of the investigation will also be able to access the necessary information, but the access will be limited to the official record of the investigation and the official record of the witness, and any other information that is not required to be included in the training record. The protection of the individual’s right to privacy should be balanced with the public interest in ensuring that the investigation is conducted in an efficient and effective manner. The investigation of an individual, such as the investigation of a witness, should be conducted in a manner that is fair, impartial, and consistent with the principles of due process. The information obtained in the course of the investigation should be protected from disclosure except as required by law or in the interest of justice.

200. Obtaining Information

201. The right to access to the investigation is only a part of the full rights and responsibilities of the individual. The right to access information is not the same as the right to influence the investigation or to control the findings. The investigation should be conducted in a manner that is fair, impartial, and consistent with the principles of due process. The information obtained in the course of the investigation should be protected from disclosure except as required by law or in the interest of justice.

202. The right to access to the investigation is only a part of the full rights and responsibilities of the individual. The right to access information is not the same as the right to influence the investigation or to control the findings. The investigation should be conducted in a manner that is fair, impartial, and consistent with the principles of due process. The information obtained in the course of the investigation should be protected from disclosure except as required by law or in the interest of justice.
The document contains a paragraph discussing the importance of investigating evidence and includes several sections titled "Protecting the Evidence," "Compliance with Court Orders," and "Protection and Security of Evidence." The text emphasizes the need for proper documentation and handling of evidence to ensure its integrity and admissibility in court. It also highlights the importance of maintaining chain of custody and adhering to legal requirements during the investigation process.